

PATRICE DOUGLAS

EXECUTIVE PARTNER

Born in Oklahoma, Patrice Douglas is a fourth-generation Okie. She attended Oklahoma Christian University for her undergraduate degree and the University of Oklahoma, where she obtained her law degree. Patrice has served in executive positions, both in her family's large commercial construction company and in banking. She served as President of SpiritBank and as Executive Vice President of First Fidelity Bank.

In April 2009, she was elected as Edmond's mayor and was unopposed for a second term. While serving as mayor, she championed public safety and led the effort to build a new public safety center, as well as creating the Small Business Task Force. As mayor of Oklahoma's 6th largest city, she was elected and served on the Oklahoma Municipal League Board of Directors and served on its Task Force on Government Efficiencies. She helped create the Mayors' Council on Economic Development and was elected as the Chairperson.

In 2011, Governor Mary Fallin appointed her to the Oklahoma Corporation Commission. She was elected as Chairman of the OCC, effective August 1, 2012, and served as Chairman until she announced her candidacy for Congress, running to serve the 5th District of Oklahoma. As one of the few women to ever be a candidate for this position, she successfully won the run-off election. She has twice testified on behalf of Oklahoma before congressional subcommittees, testifying on behalf of cities and the oil and gas industry. She continues her efforts to educate on these issues with opinion editorials that appear across the nation.

After leaving public office, she returned to the practice of law, where she is "of counsel" for Spencer Fane Law Firm. She served on the board of directors of BankSNB, sitting on both the audit committee and the credit committee. Recently, she served on the Board of Directors of the public company Midstates Petroleum as the Nominating and Governance Chairman and later the Audit Chairman. In August 2019, Midstates completed a merger with a similarly sized company, Amplify Energy. Patrice now serves on the Board of Directors for Amplify.

Community service is her passion. She has served on many different statewide boards, task forces, and non-profit organizations. She was the vice-chairman of Governor Keating's Task Force on Early Childhood Education. Serving two terms for the Edmond Economic Development Authority, she was elected chairman and served in that capacity for 4 years. She also served on the Oklahoma Bankers Association Board of Directors and the Executive Committee of the Edmond Chamber of Commerce. Currently, she is on the Board of Directors for the State Chamber of Oklahoma. She was a member of Leadership OKC, Class XIX, Leadership Oklahoma, Class XVII, and the 2012-2013 SALLT Leadership Class. She still volunteers for UR Special, an organization founded by her mother, to serve at-risk children in Edmond.

Patrice received the Kate Barnard Award for Outstanding Public Service in Oklahoma—the first municipal official to receive this honor. She is a three-time finalist for the Journal Record's Woman of the Year and has been named Oklahoma Christian's Distinguished Alumni for the College of Business. In October 2013, she also received the Energy Visionary Policy Leadership Award. Family and faith are her focus. Her husband of over 30 years, Brent Douglas, is president of Magellan Executive Partners. Her two sons, Patrick and Phillip, are the lights of her life.
